

Multimodal transportation is transportation of cargo performed by several means of transportation involving the whole infrastructure. This variant of transportation combines at least two different modes of transport: by rail, sea, road, air).

The advantage of multimodal transportation is the delivery by different modes of transport which aims to minimize time and money expenses.